Congratulations to all 80 care homes receiving GSF Quality Hallmark Award!

Examples of best practice - what has been achieved by care homes

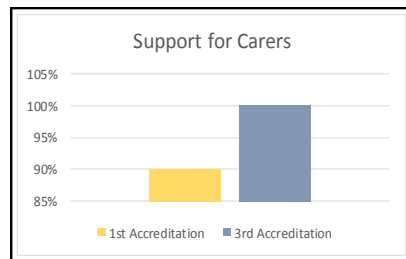

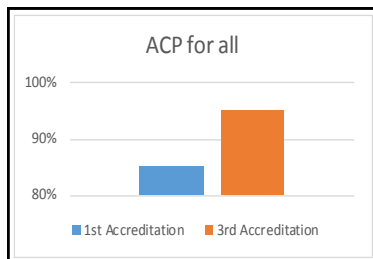

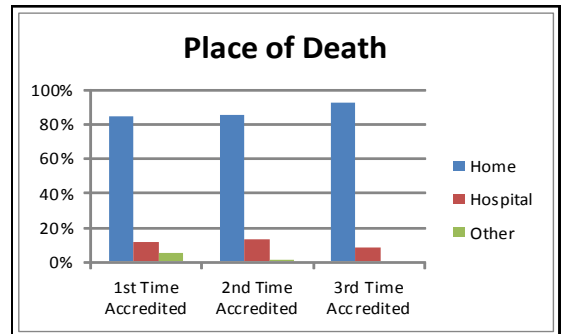

- Reduced hospital admissions
- Enabling more to die at home - almost 90% die in care home
- 85% of residents are offered an ACP discussion
- Improved working with GPs
- Sustained long term change - as shown by reaccredited homes
- Increased staff retention, morale, job satisfaction
- Sustained culture change
- Trebling of residents on GPs' Palliative Care Register

"The new updated GSF programme represents incredibly good value, builds on 15 years of success involving thousands of care homes, where it has been shown to be transformational, not only for staff, but for relatives and residents. GSF helps demystify dying and encourages everyone to play their part, so staff morale improves and turnover decreases. In enabling better quality care, with better outcomes recognised by CQC, this helps differentiate quality homes from others, making them stand out in this vital area of care."

Martin Green OBE, Chief Exec: Care England

"Without a shadow of a doubt GSF helped us achieve the Outstanding rating from CQC. A page and a half of their report was focused on GSF and for us to demonstrate high standards of care means we are demonstrating high standards of end of life care, because of the profile of our residents. GSF is the foundation of our care which means it is the foundation of our CQC rating. We have stopped thinking about GSF as an accreditation and an addition to what we do. It is simply a way in which we deliver day to day care. It is the very principle of our care model. So, every member of staff has the mentality that they might be delivering a resident's last breakfast for example and we all have just one chance to get it right." Simon Pedzisi, Nightingale Hammerson

Care Home, Clapham, London

"Many of our staff have been here since we started GSF 12 years ago; they feel more competent and therefore more confident to deal with complex conditions...We are always looking to improve, but GSF is no longer an 'add-on', it is part of everyday life, and long may that continue." George Hill, Cornmill Nursing Home, Preston, Lancashire
